Preparations for Opening the Centennial Exhibition.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—Great progress has been made since Saturday in the preparations for the opening of the Centennial Exhibition. Portions of Memorial Hall are ready, but there still remains a large quantity of scaffolding and material in the center of the building. Many cars of the narrow gauge railway are on the track, and the managers promise to have them operating to-morrow.

The French exhibit of silks has been partially uncovered, but the passage ways are filled with boxes. The English department is progressing rapidly, and most of the exhibitions promise to be ready Wednesday.

Gen. Hawley says the grounds of the exhibition may possibly be opened on Sunday, but the decision concerning the building is final.

The governor and other State officers of Massachusetts accompanied by several bodies of troops as an escort and a band of music left Boston last night for the formal opening of the Centennial at Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Fitzhugh's Letter.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Sun's Washington special says the letter of the doorkeeper of the House to A. A. Maddox of Texas which has been printed broadcast gathering material as it goes could easily have been suppressed had the doorkeeper chosen to make certain appointments for which pressure had been brought to bear on him. [illegible] could have secured the letter by the prostitution of his position but refused to do it. The letter was strictly a private one, written in a spirit of pleasantry to a man who was supposed to be a personal friend, and it has been grossly and outrageously changed, both in sentence and orthography. This has been the work of men who seem disappointed in their expectations of securing appointments under the doorkeeper.

Mail Service Frauds.

The committee on postoffice expenditures meet to-morrow to examine a number of witnesses summoned from Omaha and Council Bluffs as to frauds in the weighing of mails by the safety method. It is alleged that by this system, with the connivance of postoffice officials the government has been defrauded out of large sums. This having been a matter of every day occurrence since Grant was made President, it no longer astonishes anybody except the parties interested, who regret that they did not make the amount larger than it is.

Alleged Want of Readiness at Philadelphia.

Persons who have just returned from Philadelphia say, with regret that in every department except that of the United States, the exposition will present a creditable appearance at the opening on Wednesday. That which is mostly regretted is the certainty of the commissioners failing to carry out the programme of opening as they have announced will be done. The condition of the building and grounds makes this utterly impossible.

Gone Home Discouraged.

After spending two or three weeks in this city with excursions to New York and Philadelphia some of the leaders of the independent and greenback movement the Convention of which was to have met at Indianapolis next week have gone home rather discouraged. They propose to put it off until the 4th of July, at Philadelphia and signalize that event with a declaration of independence of all parties unless their peculiar platform should be accepted at Cincinnati or St. Louis. They tried hard to get a presidential candidate here, and would have been glad to take Judge Davis without committal. Morton coquetted with them and like "Barkis was willing" but they required a man with sound legs to run well.

Reduced War Estimates.

Taft's estimates are about $[illegible],000,000 under those submitted by Belknap. The appropriation for barracks and military buildings is reduced about a million and the appropriation for the army very near the same amount as reported by the House appropriation committee.

Office of Civil Engineer of the Navy to be Abolished.

The House committee on naval affairs has agreed to report a bill abolishing the office of civil engineer of the navy department, as this position is a sinecure, costing the government about $8,000 annually. There is one civil engineer at each navy yard, and Secretary Robeson has accommodatingly agreed to the proposed reform.

Government Silver Bullion.

The government has on hand as part of its silver bullion fund about $3,000,000 which were held prior to February 14th, 1873, when the resumption act, as it is called, was approved. A large quantity of silver bullion is used with gold in the process of manufacturing gold coin, and this amount of bullion was on hand, not to be made into silver coin, but to be used in the coinage of gold. As the bullion from the Nevada mint from which the gold is now separated contains more than the necessary proportion of silver for working the bullion that was on hand need no longer be retained, and as it is not considered to be within the provisions of the resumption act it is not necessary that it should be paid out in exchange for fractional currency. The secretary has directed that it be paid out in the ordinary disbursements of the government whenever called for, so that any one who has a check upon the United States can secure silver for the whole or any part of it. The result will be that the three millions of silver coin will be thrown into circulation in a few days in all the large cities of the country and it is thought here that the scarcity of small change will be greatly and almost immediately relieved. The hoarding of silver coins appears to be carried on to a greater extent than was anticipated and it is thought that when it centers on trade and is scattered among the farmers, and especially the negroes of the South it will circulate very slowly and reluctantly. It is variously estimated that from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 as special coinage will be necessary after the fractional currency has been exchanged to meet the natural desire of the people to lay away small quantities of coins. The habit was common previous to the war and the effect of the silver resumption has been to release considerable old silver coin, as is shown by the fact that old dimes even of the denomination of half dollars are frequently found in circulation with the new.

Passage of the Hawaiian Bill.

Miss Ada C. Sweet, Pension Agent of Chicago.

Miss Ada C. Sweet of Chicago has arrived in town in obedience to a subpœna issued for her by the committee on civil service reform. She will testify concerning the story that has been in circulation a long time as to her having paid a portion of her salary to the U. S. marshal at Chicago. The whole story was published at the time, [illegible] and it will be remembered that Miss Sweet [illegible] time wrote a letter [illegible] from any connection with or any knowledge of the payment and Miss Sweet has never told the story to any one except the President. She will tell the whole story before the committee, and if the story as published are correct it would seem that a vacancy would be likely to be made before long in the office of marshal in at least one judicial district.

Miss Ada C. Sweet, pension agent at Chicago, testified before the committee concerning the charges of paying money for her position [illegible]. She testified that she was [illegible] [illegible] when she had paid [illegible] [illegible] Blakely [illegible] [illegible] Campbell [illegible] [illegible] days. [illegible] Miss Sweet [illegible] after the Minnesota election Gen. J. H. Baker, commissioner of pensions [illegible] came into her office and demanded that the [illegible] of $3,000 deficit should be paid that day and charged it upon her as her own debt [illegible]. Campbell and between them the amount was raised. Campbell gave her a note for about $1,500, which she endorsed and [illegible] the balance of [illegible] 000. In this way the debt was made up. On that occasion Blakely and Baker were [illegible] of the arrangement which she made with Blakely. When the President found out that she was paying out money for her appointment he notified [illegible] This was after she had paid the $3,000. She had paid out so much besides that amount that she had received no benefit from her appointment but is still in debt. Baker is now Surveyor General of Minnesota and Blakely is publishing a paper somewhere in that vicinity. Adjourned until [illegible]

California Circuit Court Decision Reversed.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The U. S. Supreme Court to-day reversed the decision of the California circuit court in the case of Sauger against Newhall, which holds that lands within railroad limits covered by a Mexican grant become a part of the public domain and are subject to homestead and preemption entry. This decision overrules the practice pursued by the Interior Department in the Dillingham case and is of immense importance to California interests.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The following decision was rendered in the Supreme Court to-day: Newhall vs. Sawyer, appeal from the circuit court for the district of California. The object of this suit was to determine the ownership of a quarter section of land in California. The complainant claimed through the Western Pacific Railroad Company, whom the patent was issued in 1870 in professed compliance with the requirements of the acts of Congress commonly known as the Pacific railroad acts. The defendant rests upon a Mexican title derived from one Dayton, whose patent was of a later date, and recites that the land was within the limits of a Mexican grant, and that the patent to the Company had been issued by mistake. The lands covered by Mexican grants fall within the limits of the railroad grant as regulated by the act of 1864. By that act it was declared that any lands granted by it shall not defeat or impair any preemption, homestead, swamp land or other lawful claim, or include any government reserve or mineral or the improvements of any bona fide settler, and under this restriction the question arose whether lands within the boundaries of an alleged Mexican or Spanish grant, which was then the subject of litigation, are public lands within the meaning of the acts of Congress under which the patent was issued to the R. R. Co. It is determined that they were not but were private property which had never passed to the United States and that they did not therefore pass to the railroad company. Decree reversed with directions to dismiss the bill. Mr. Justice Davis delivered the opinion. Mr. Justice Field dissenting, holding that the only lands excepted by Congress from its grant to the company consisted of sections within certain limits which at the time the line of the road was definitely fixed had been sold, reserved or otherwise disposed of by the United States, or to which a preemption or homestead claim had then attached. This exception was intended to keep the public land open to settlement and sale until the line of road was established.

Judge Field could not understand how the presentation of a fraudulent claim to any portion of the lands within the circuits designated, founded upon an invalid or forged Mexican grant, could change the character of the [illegible] as public lands, or have any other effect upon the titles of the company than to subject it to the annoyance and expense of exposing and defeating the claim. Mr. Justice Strong concurred in the dissent.

The Forged Subpena.

The issue of the forged subpena to Haller has been traced by what is considered conclusive evidence to one John Manly, United States commissioner to survey the Seneca Indian reservation, with whom Haller, of Salamanca, had some difficulty. Manly will probably be arrested and brought before the House to show cause why he should not be punished for usurping the functions of its speaker and committees. To be sure the House has sent for a hundred witnesses as uselessly as Haller was summoned, but the witnesses subpœnaed in earnest have their traveling expenses paid and Haller has to pay his own.

The Committee on the District of Columbia Ready to Report.

The district committee will soon be ready to make its report. It is announced as if by authority that Chairman Buckner will write a tremendous document, and there will be a necessity for a minor report.

New War Estimates.

The Secretary of War will to-morrow submit new estimates of the appropriations required for the army and other branches of public service under his control as required by the House on account of the impeachment of Belknap. Taft reduces Belknap's estimates $3,000,000, making the total for the military establishment $28,000,000 instead of $33,000,000. In a single item, that of barracks and new buildings for the army, the estimates made by Taft are about $1,000,000 less than Belknap's. It is claimed that the estimate to be submitted to-morrow very nearly meet the views of the House committee on appropriations and will be agreed to by them with but slight modification. The Democrats consider that they have made a mistake in giving Taft the opportunity to revise estimates. He has taken away all their capital in reducing that bill.

Kerr to Resign the Speakership.

The Tribune's Washington special says Kerr in consequence of continued ill health with threatening results and by the peremptory direction of a council of physicians has decided to resign his position as Speaker of the House. His letter will be presented to the House to-morrow. Kerr has declined a re-election to Congress, and if his health does not recover will resign his seat in Congress.

Large Number of Decisions of the Supreme Court.

Before adjournment to-day the Supreme Court delivered opinions in thirty three cases, making in all for the term two hundred and six opinions. Three hundred and thirty three cases have been disposed of. The granger cases were not decided. It is probable before the decision is announced at another term there will be little need of such, as some of the acts complained of in the cases have already been repealed and [illegible] as soon as reached in legislative action. There are a few other cases left over among which are the New York Mutual Insurance Company cases, just argued, involving the question of the effect of war upon contracts of insurance between Northern companies and Southern policy holders.

Secretary Fish's Letter in the Winslow Case.

Fish's letter in the Winslow case, which our chargé de affaires at London was directed to present to the attention of Lord Derby, was made public to-day. It reviews at great length the circumstances connected with the extradition of Lawrence on which case the correspondence in the Winslow case was based, but nearly if not quite all the points are already known to the public. Fish makes the point that, notwithstanding England's act of parliament of 1870 she has since that time extradited our criminals without requiring any guarantee on our part to try said criminals only on extradition offenses, and plainly informs England that if her act of parliament stands in the way, a solemn compact between two nations' measures will be immediately taken to abrogate the treaty.

The True Financial Policy.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Dr. Linderman, director of mints, expresses the opinion that the true policy of the United States is to adhere to a gold standard and before gold resumption to put in circulation all subsidiary silver coins which may be required for purposes of change. If countries like France, Germany, Holland, Belgium and Great Britain which have a large amount of silver coins on hand are sufferers from their depreciation, should call an international convention to consider the question of fixing a new relation in the gold and silver coins it would be our duty, Dr. Linderman thinks, to join them.

The bill introduced to-day by Representative Wells to provide for the [illegible] subsidiary silver coin is as follows: Any owner of silver bullion may deposit the same at any coinage mint or the assay offices at New York and receive payment therefor in subsidiary silver coin at a rate of price per troy ounce to be fixed and announced from time to time by the director of the mint with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, such price to be based on the market value; the cost of coinage shall devolve on the seller of bullion and the profit on seigniorage arising therefrom shall accrue to the government; provided that the total amount of silver coins issued under this act shall not exceed the sum of $[illegible],000,000.

Leopard Stockholders.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—The dissatisfied stockholders of the Leopard mine met this evening to hear the report of the committee appointed to inquire into the conduct of the mine by the present management. The committee reported that they were courteously received by the officers who made a favorable report of the condition of the mine. The committee recommend that all stockholders who have stock in the hands of brokers or agents have it transferred to their own names, so that a majority vote can be obtained to enable them to oust the present management.

The news of the dividend declared by the California Mining Co. was a surprise to the street. It was reported a few days ago that a dividend would be declared on the 20th inst., but the Stock Report, which is generally considered authority in connection with bonanza affairs, asserted there was no foundation for such a report. Late this afternoon the stock went up on the street to $80 and $81 on the strength of the dividend.

Spalding Court Martial.

In the Spalding court martial it is thought that the testimony for the defense will close to-morrow. Subpenas are out for De La Montague and Hanscom. There are already 1180 pages of testimony recorded by the clerk, exclusive of exhibits.

At the Spalding court martial to-day Gen. LaGrange, superintendent of the mint, was placed on the stand, and testified he had known Pinney years ago as a clergyman in the Western States; that when Pinney came here from Montana he was broke, and witness, knowing him to be a man of ability, and believing him honest, gave him a berth in the mint and subsequently obtained his appointment as clerk in the navy pay office. Witness said he had a point to make himself about that time, and the influence of a man of Pinney's ability in his favor would be of advantage to him; that at that time witness and Eastman were working at cross purposes, and the burden of Pinney's appointment properly rested on witness' shoulders.

Meeting of Democratic County Committee.

The Democratic county committee met in executive session Friday evening last and adopted a resolution that on the evening of the 20th inst., four days previous to the meeting of the State convention, the committee shall appoint forty delegates, each member naming one; that each Senatorial district shall be entitled to five, to be agreed upon by the members of the committee residing in their respective districts, and that two delegates shall be elected at large, making the entire number seventy two.

Defaulter Arraigned.

Miller Woodruffs, defaulting Secretary of the Contract & Finance Co., was arraigned in the municipal court this morning to plead to an indictment for embezzlement found by the late grand jury. Woodruffs pleaded not guilty and the case went over until to-morrow. He is out on bail on four similar indictments.

Anti-Chinese Commissioners.

In the board of supervisors this evening the mayor submitted communications appointing Frank M. Pixley, Hall Roach and Mark McDonald commissioners to present the Chinese question to Congress. Pixley has already gone East and the others expect to follow in a few days.

The board this evening by a unanimous vote, killed the boiler inspector bill.

Fryer Reduction Works Opened to the Public.

GRASS VALLEY, May 4.—The Fryer Reduction Works were opened to the public this forenoon, when the machinery was set in motion. A large number of persons were present, including capitalists, editors and correspondents from every part of the State and from distant States and Territories. The whole apparatus is entirely different from anything in use before. It consists of a furnace designed to roast at a high temperature refractory ores, in order to reduce the noble metals to a pure state before amalgamation. The second operation is treating the roasted ores in a revolving apparatus of octagon shape provided with sixteen cylinders five feet long, twenty inches in diameter, and equal in capacity to a five stamp battery. Quicksilver, hot water and some chemicals as yet unnamed are placed in the cylinders with the roasted ores, the heads of the cylinders are tightly closed and the pulverizing apparatus set in motion at the rate of ten revolutions to a minute. The cylindrical weight of 250 pounds in each cylinder falls twice upon the ore in every revolution, pulverizing it to an impalpable powder, while at the same time amalgamation is going on. After six hours of this treatment the cylinders are opened and the pulp ejected through a pipe into the separator, where it is met by a current of water at bottom of the separating vat which keeps the pulp in active motion, and the amalgam goes into the receptacle at the bottom of the separator and the slimes float off at the top. These pass through a rotary quartz box provided with copper plates to catch the smallest particles of amalgam if such could possibly escape. The amalgam is immediately drawn off and retorted, and in 12 hours from the time the quartz is first put into the furnace the result—bullion—is obtained, averaging from 90 to 95 per cent of the assayed value of the ore, and that effected at very small cost. With free ores the furnace is omitted, as the pulverizer is sufficient without. As the machinery started the octagonal pulverizer moved off as perfectly as though it had been in use for years. Mr. Fryer, the inventor, and Mr. Hall, President of the Fryer Noble Metal Mining company, were both warmly congratulated upon the success. Mr. Hall, who had witnessed the inauguration of the enterprise, left by the afternoon train for New York.

"Rather remarkable, isn't it, sir. But have you ever noticed as 'mostly all the places on this line beg'n with a H?" "Aw, beg your pardon?" "Look at em! Ampstead, 'Ighgate, 'Ackney, 'Omerton, 'Endon, 'Arrow, 'Olloway and 'Ornsey."—Punch.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—[illegible] and [illegible] concluded at 1:30 P. M., when Judge [illegible] counsel for [illegible]

[illegible] argument that the Senate might convene for regular [illegible]

Sargent submitted the following preamble and resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It appears that a vast influx of Chinese to the Pacific coast is working great injury to the morals and the material interests of the Pacific States and Territories, and whereas the existing laws against the Coolie traffic and the importation of females for immoral purposes fail in execution for want of evidence of the intended evasion thereof, therefore

Resolved, That the committee on commerce be instructed to consider the subject and report fully, placing [illegible] restrictions upon the immigration of Chinese to this country.

At 2 o'clock the Senate took a recess for 30 minutes.

Judge Black concluded his argument about 3 o'clock, when, on motion of Edmunds, the galleries were cleared and the Senate went into secret session. At 5 o'clock the doors were reopened and the chair announced that the Senate had agreed upon two orders, which were read as follows:

Ordered, that until further notice the attendance before the Senate of the managers and the respondent will not be required.

Ordered, that when the Senate sitting for the trial of impeachment adjourn it be to Monday next at 12:30 P. M. The Senate then adjourned.

House.

Randall offered a bill providing for the coinage of $25,000,000 additional silver coin to that already furnished. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase silver bullion with legal tenders; said silver shall be paid out in ordinary disbursements of the Treasury or in exchange for trade dollars at par. The bill further provides that the trade dollar shall not be a legal tender. Referred to the banking and currency committee. This bill is said to meet the views of Bristow.

Hale offered a resolution directing the several committees of the House charged with investigations to conduct such investigations with open doors while any testimony was being taken. Rejected, [illegible] against [illegible].

Hale then moved to refer the resolution to the judiciary committee with instructions to report. Rejected, [illegible] against 111.

A resolution was adopted directing the committee on ways and means to make a thorough investigation in the management of the New York custom house and of the charges and reforms necessary.

The House at [illegible] adjourned with the understanding that no business would be transacted to-morrow and that the House would merely meet and adjourn.

The Pope very Feeble.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Herald's Rome special says His Holiness is very feeble in body. He has to be supported by two prelates of the church, and on the occasion of Vatican receptions he alleges his bodily weakness as his excuse for not going round to bless trinkets or other matters which are presented to him.

French Ministerial Circular.

PARIS, May 8.—Ricard, Minister of Interior, has sent a circular to the Prefects informing them that the time has arrived to put an end to doubts which Bonapartist party hopes. They must distinctly declare they are called upon to co-operate with the work of conciliation as representatives of the republic. The circular also urges the Prefects to act with deference and consideration towards elective councils.

General Cluseret's Spunk.

General Cluseret writes to the Gaulois denying the statement, which he regards as an insult, that he solicited a pardon. He says he expected to be shot if captured, and would have shot ex-President Thiers or President MacMahon if he had captured them.

Dom Pedro in Congress.

Dom Pedro visited both Houses of Congress to-day and seemed to take quite an interest in the proceedings. He also visited the Supreme Court and then went to the Executive Mansion and was met in the blue room by the President and Secretary Fish, and after being presented passed to the red room, where he was introduced to Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Fish and Mrs. Fred Grant. Some time was then spent in social conversation.

Irish Rifle Team.

LONDON, May 8.—Advices from Spain state that the ex-Queens Christine and Isabella will return during the summer and permanently reside there.

MEXICO.

Progress of the Revolution.

HAVANA, April 7.—The steamer has arrived from Vera Cruz bringing advices from the City of Mexico to April 30. Thirteen States of the Mexican Confederation are in absolute peace and loyal to the government; five others are disturbed by scattered bands of revolutionists. In Vera Cruz, Oaxaca and [illegible] the insurrection is desperate. Large bands also trouble the peace of Hidalgo, Mexico and Morelia. [illegible] hostility to Lerdo at the capital is strong. Fifty five thousand stand of improved arms and a million dollars worth of ammunition from the United States have arrived at the capital from Vera Cruz. Congress by a vote of 1[illegible] to 36 voted to adjourn until one month after the next presidential inauguration. It has granted the president extraordinary powers for the conduct of the war and for raising money.

It is rumored that Diaz marched into the interior and is at San Luis [illegible]. He has established a provisional government for the State of Tamaulipas. The government is very active and is organizing a large force in the interior under Escobedo to march to the frontier. The campaign in Oaxaca has apparently been abandoned. Generals Alatorre and Cortina are in the State of Vera Cruz operating on the line of railroad bridges.

The insurgents have so far destroyed only the bridges built of wood, and the great iron bridges were threatened if the Company attempts to run trains. The road is now guarded from Vera Cruz to Orizaba, and travel is partially resumed. Three thousand insurgents have invaded the State of Hidalgo. Latest accounts were that one point of attacking will be at Pachuca. The revolutionists at Minatitlan have captured two vessels loaded with ammunition, which is a heavy loss to the government.

There was a severe shock of earthquake at Guadalajara on April 13th.

A religious revolt has taken place in Queretaro. Rev. Maxwell Phillips, of the Presbyterian missions, was badly wounded.

UTAH.

Trial of the Mountain Meadow Murderers.

BEAVER, May 8.—Lee and Dame, indicted for participation in the Mountain Meadow massacre, appeared by counsel in court this morning. It is understood that they will be tried separately. Wheedon, prosecuting attorney, declined to act, his principal, Carey, having been removed. Most of the time was consumed in the argument of this question, Sutherland, for Dame, contending that Carey's removal did not affect Wheedon. The progress of the trials seems to depend upon this question. It will be decided this afternoon. Dame is present and Lee will be here to-morrow.

The difficulty as to the prosecuting attorneyship has been settled by the pro tem appointment of Presley Denny by the court. At the request of defendants' counsel thirty additional jurors will be drawn to provide against its exhaustion by challenges of the number already drawn. Everything indicates that the trials will be pushed vigorously to a conclusion. It is rumored that Judge Boreman has determined to dispose of these cases at this term or discharge the prisoners, and this may have the effect of causing those who have been hid so long to voluntarily appear in court.

Mrs. Mumford Dead.

SALT LAKE, May 8.—Mrs. Mumford of Rochester, New York, mother of the late Geo. H. Mumford, vice president W. U. T. Co., died suddenly of apoplexy at the Townsend House in this city yesterday. Her remains went East this morning.

Honolulu people say it rains some days in the week at Hilo and thirteen months in the year, and once in a great while it rains into the bung-hole of a barrel faster than it can flow out at both ends.

LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, April 15, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Perhaps there is no compound of brick and mortar on the continent which possesses greater interest for Americans generally, and around which their thoughts will more universally cluster in this Centennial year, than Independence Hall. No one needs to be reminded what has made it historic who is at all familiar with the contents of that simple scroll over which the Continental Congress so long debated a hundred years ago. The history of those men and that debate has, by association, made that old hall little less than sacred in the eyes of the American people, and surrounded it with a halo of romance. The farther one is separated, in time and distance, the more potent the singular charm, but to those who have had occasion to pass and repass beneath its shadows on errands of business and pleasure almost daily during a long series of years, the romantic features never appear. Here familiarity breeds contempt indeed, and they wouldn't give a fig to cross its portals. There is no spell that prompts them to speak of it reverentially and with bated breath. It has become as familiar as an old shoe, and no dread of seeing the ghosts of their revolutionary ancestors ever deter them from putting their hands upon its walls or leaning "jam" up against it with impious irreverence. By writers of history we are requested to believe that the building is of human origin—even though the Declaration was adopted there—and that sordid architects, in hope of gain, began its erection only a century and a half ago. This readily and satisfactorily explains how it happens that Herodotus and Homer make no mention of it. It is distinctly American in its origin. There is no trace of the Doric, the Ionic—or the Kickitat—in its style of architecture. It is severely plain, simple and eminently republican in all its striking features, and though built during the reign of royalty, the enthusiast will assure you that its noticeable lack of ornament was at the time a portent of the coming advent of republican institutions, which England might well have heeded. From a meager, matter o' fact sketch of the building we learn that it was begun fifty years after the founding of the city of Philadelphia, and that it has been successively occupied by the Assembly of Pennsylvania, the Supreme Court, the Congress of the United States, Peale's Museum and the Councils of Philadelphia, and that in it met the first U. S. Senate and were inaugurated Presidents Washington and Adams. It is not like some of the historic shrines of the Old World, hidden away in some obscure corner, covered with moss and green with ivy, but stands in the very heart of a great and bustling city, on Chestnut street, the Broadway of Philadelphia, and one of the greatest promenades on the continent. William Penn in his day would have considered it out of town and too far away from the Delaware, little dreaming that his straggling village would ultimately stretch beyond the Schuylkill and the city postoffice was finally to be its nearest neighbor. The large space fronting the Hall is fitly guarded by a rather harmless looking statue of George Washington, which stands up in stiff serenity just as statues should, with that expressionless look of benevolence on its face which is only known to sculptors' statues and plaster casts, while around its base through all the week are crowding throngs to discuss business, politics and the weather. The Hall is being restored as far as possible to its original condition, though the additions which are being made in the way of relics would astonish those familiar with its appearance as it stood 100 years ago. Almost a complete set of the portraits of the Signers have been secured, with those of many others of the Revolutionary leaders, one room being devoted almost exclusively to this purpose, while just across the hall there is a motley and confused collection of trinkets, gathered from all quarters, and from their infinite variety defying all description. The managers of this department seem to have accepted everything offered with the most gratifying impartiality, and have made this little else than a lumber room. Of course no one rushes into this apartment before having inquired for

THE LIBERTY BELL.

The first impulse is to start for the belfry, as that is the most appropriate place for a thing of the kind. Don't act on this impulse, the bell isn't there. They've got it hedged up in an iron cage in a back room to keep fools from slobbering over it and breaking it up into pieces for Centennial relics. An attendant will show it to you, set up on substantial framework, and the chances are that he will take you back into a corner in a confidential way and ask you to buy a fifty cent Centennial medal. There is no compulsion about it, but if you're a patriot and a philanthropist you'll take one as the design of the medal is patriotic and the man is evidently the head and only support of a large family. We are told by certain sentimental correspondents of the press that there are bodies who cry over that bell every time they think of or look at it. This would be funny if it wasn't sad and didn't show a stunning prevalence of "emotional insanity." The average Centennial correspondent always ventures the remark that nine out of ten, on seeing it, take off their hats reverently, express an insane desire to hear it ring, and then drawing their handkerchiefs in a tragical way, burst into a flood of tears. This is an exaggeration, but has too much truth to constitute it a libel. Any way, there is no law against these sentimental gushers aping the manners of a homesick country bumpkin every time they see a piece of bell metal. This privilege of bawling is a right guaranteed by the constitution, but still we protest in the name of 40,000,000 people against making it a test of patriotism. We have nothing but the most kindly feelings for the old Liberty bell, but there are thousands of others that would have rung in the advent of the nation just as joyfully. Candidly, however, the best that can be said of it, after learning that it has been cracked twice, is that it is a miserably poor piece of bell metal and a relic of anti revolutionary shoddy, and this is really the secret of the refusal to allow Mr. D. L. Riggs of Salem, the privilege of mending it, though the attendant seriously claimed the managers had fears he would carry it away somewhere—possibly to start a new republic—and would never bring it back. The bell is said to have a history, and doubtless has. It came from England—another British outrage—in 1752, and it seems that upon its arrival some individual who had an inexcusable weakness for trying experiment broke it in testing it. It was recast with the addition upon it of the famous injunction, "Proclaim liberty," etc., and served its original purpose until again cracked, in 1835, in tolling the death of Chief Justice Marshall, since which time it has proved neither useful nor ornamental. On the coming Fourth of July it will be a central object of interest, but no one is rash enough to predict to what lengths the associated brotherhood of idiots will go. One man wants it rung by the President, another suggests the soldiers of 1812, another wants it drawn through the streets, so all can see it, by a team of thirteen oxen, typical of the number and primitive character of the colonies, while still another suggests thirty seven men as representing the present number of States, and offers his services as one of the number. Leaving the old bell in the care of those who love it so well, a visit to the relic room shows a collection suggestive of Mrs. Jarley's wax works and demonstrates the truth of the saying that men are but boys grown tall. There are first the paintings and scores of old manuscripts, chairs, sofas and tables all supposed to be of some historic interest. There are colonial coats, vests, slippers, buttons, shoe buckles, corsets and doll babies. There is the inkstand used in signing the Declaration, Washington's razor and visiting cards, part of Hancock's writing desk, John Paul Jones' ale mug, "Brother Jonathan" Trumbull's pistols, an old lightning rod first put up under the direction of Ben. Franklin, the model of a [illegible] cutter made from Washington's coffin, and the bell used for alarum at Valley Forge. One of the most interesting manuscripts is a letter, written by F. S. Key, giving a partial account of that excursion whose end made him famous and gave "The Star Spangled Banner" to the world, and closing with the words: "I hope to return in about 8 or ten days, though it is uncertain, as I do not know where to find the fleet. * * * Give my love to the children and to papa. God bless you my dear mother. Ever your affectionate son, F. S. Key." Another souvenir of almost priceless value, is the original of the first telegraphic message ever sent, with the autograph endorsement of Morse, reading as follows: "What hath God wrought." "This sentence was written from Washington by me at the Baltimore terminus at 8:45 on Friday, May 24, 1844, being the first ever transmitted from Washington to Baltimore by telegraph, and was indited by my much loved friend, Annie G. Ellsworth. (Signed) Samuel F. B. Morse, Supt. of Electro Magnetic Telegraph." In one of the cases near the entrance are seen some familiar looking articles labeled "Baby clothes made by Mrs. John Adams, for her son John Quincy Adams." Just think of John Quincy, the scholar, the [illegible] and the author of that voluminous diary which the filial piety of Charles Francis is now inflicting on us, [illegible] baby cloth and [illegible] paregoric. Its enough to stagger even Hawley. Near them stands a colonial doll baby that possibly served to amuse the great statesman in his infancy. Then there are two [illegible] ordinary [illegible] buttons, one worn by Wm. Penn, and the other by Geo. Washington, curiosities in their way but [illegible] like the common place buttons of the 19th century. What principle is taught or peculiarity of life illustrated in them, that Col. Forney and Col. Etting and their confreres should rake the continent in their collection? Can they be [illegible] to point a moral or adorn a tale [illegible] a coat tail? True, the [illegible] glass and gaudy colored buttons in the adjoining case with which Penn humbugged the Indians at the Fort Stanwix treaty are suggestive. They [illegible] to weaken faith in Quaker purity and suggest Indian rings and investigating committees.

What's in a button, anyway, or rather, what is a button? A button is a material, inorganic body, that [illegible] associations, an idea, a troop of ideas, [illegible] a principle. Ah, we have it! Those baby clothes, [illegible] buttons, and that [illegible] looking doll [illegible] transmitted to us from colonial days, are [illegible] to remind us of Lexington, Valley Forge and Yorktown, and are concrete, material [illegible] of the truth of history, without which some impious doubter might assert that Penn and Washington were myths, and that that old picture of the Indians pitching tea into Boston harbor was nothing but the figment of some diseased imagination. The collection is at least harmless and interesting if not instructive, and will prove a very attractive addition during the coming months to the great central exposition in Fairmount Park. It is perhaps a rather abrupt digression to jump from a sketch of Independence Hall into the filthy pool of but Pennsylvania is, like the rest of mankind, are being drawn in that direction and are becoming more and more [illegible] each succeeding day, so [illegible] [illegible] Pennsylvania [illegible] to Hartranft for the [illegible] nomination, but the [illegible] way in which the [illegible] to him and the unanimity and [illegible] with which they speak of Blaine as a fit [illegible] ought to give some weight to the [illegible] that the latter is really the [illegible] all others. The [illegible] of the leading [illegible] convention [illegible] of sentiment in favor of [illegible] should have [illegible] made [illegible] by the [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] grounds and [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] Pennsylvania [illegible] to the [illegible] convention are only [illegible] tions from voting and [illegible] the first ballot, and this [illegible] one of the [illegible] Hon. Morton McMichael, the [illegible] of the North American, the [illegible] and highly respectable organ of the party here, has come out in a [illegible] article for Blaine as the man above all others for the nomination. The recent scandal which it was hoped would swamp him is placed on a par with the Bristow mule and hog story, and doesn't [illegible] to effect the tide which is rising in his favor. No one can tell what a day may bring forth, and the result of the deliberations of a political convention is so [illegible] thing "no fellah can find out," but judged from a Philadelphia stand-point, his greatest strength is the only thing he has to fear, as it may combine all the elements of the [illegible] tion in a united front to [illegible], and, unless this [illegible], the [illegible] of it [illegible] Sammy Cox, that he had "killed Jim Blaine" in the amnesty debate, is likely to be [illegible] as one of his [illegible] jokes. Bah for Blaine.

C. B. M.

Y[illegible] an elderly man [illegible] was passing [illegible] a lady on the [illegible] side stubbed her toe and fell down. The old gentleman rushed across the street, [illegible] his hat and off [illegible] to [illegible] her in any [illegible] way. His wife followed him [illegible] at a slow pace, and witnessing his devotion to the stranger she got mad and shook her fist at him.

"It's all right—it's all right!" he [illegible]

"Yes, I know it is!" she hotly exclaimed. "Here an unknown woman stubs her toe and you plough across the street to set her up with kindness. The other day when I fell down stairs you stood at the bottom and laughed, and chuckled and tickled your ribs, and wanted to know if I was [illegible] for a circus!"

A correspondent at the quiet town of Fairfield, Marion county, under date of May 4th, says: "There has been but little spring grain sown in this vicinity. Most of the farmers will summer fallow their land. The fall sown wheat looks well. There is very little grain in the warehouses here. There is one store, one cobbler shop, one [illegible] shop, and a good opening for a blacksmith. We have preaching twice a month. Our school is flourishing under the charge of Mr. T. Vincent."

Gov. Rice picked up a bundle which an Irish woman dropped the other day in Boston, and brushing the dirt off, handed it back to her with a bow. A bystander asked her, "Do you know who that polite gentleman was?" "No, indade," she replied. "Well, that was the Governor of Massachusetts." "Indade, he's a perfect gintleman, anyway," was her reply.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 9, 1876.

THE JAPANESE INDEMNITY.

Among the measures now being discussed in the Senate is the bill for the return to Japan of our share of the indemnity fund exacted from Japan in 1864 for hostile acts of the Prince of Nagato. The return of about eleven hundred thousand dollars of this fund, being the whole amount less one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, was advocated by Senator Booth, who argued that the debt was not a just one, but a tribute from the weak to the strong. He said it might be easy to convict Japan of wrong doing out of the text books, but we should not forget that the whole transaction arose out of an attempt to force Japan into an unwilling participation into that civilization by whose severest rules she was judged in the first stages of her novitiate.

On the other side Senator Sargent argued that the money was not improperly obtained: that there would be just as much reason for ceding back to Mexico part of the territory exacted from her, as for repaying this military exaction; that the money should be paid into the treasury for the benefit of American taxpayers, and, finally, that Japan would be put in a humiliating attitude by our offering to return the money on the ground of her weakness.

The facts out of which grew the demand for and payment of the fund, as stated in Prof. Griffin's book on Japan, extracts from the advance sheets of which are published in the New York World, are as follows:

On the 25th of June, 1863, the American steamer Pembroke, on her way from Yokohama to Shanghai, anchored near the town of Shimonoseki, and was warned off by a blank discharge. The next day two Choshiu steamers attacked her, but she escaped without injury. On hearing this (July 11) the American Minister directed Capt. M'Dougall, of the United States steamer Wyoming, of four twelve pounders and two pivot guns, to proceed to Shimonoseki. Arriving there on the 16th, Capt. M'Dougall ran his ship between the two Choshiu men-of-war, receiving their fire and that of six batteries. An eleven inch shell from the Wyoming exploding in her boiler, blew up the steamer. The brig was sunk, and the batteries shelled. After an hour and ten minutes, having been hulled eleven times and receiving about thirty shots in masts, rigging and smoke stack, and having five men killed and six wounded, the brave captain withdrew from such overwhelming odds, and returned to Yokohama.

Some French and Dutch ships were also fired on after blank warnings, and a fight ensued between them and the Japanese forces. Fruitless negotiations followed, and on the 5th of September, 1864, an allied squadron, consisting of nine English, three French, four Dutch and one American ship, attacked the batteries in Shimonoseki straits.

After a battle (September 5 and 6) bravely contested on both sides, the batteries were silenced by the ships, and captured and destroyed by landing and the guns removed. The total expenses incurred by the United States in this expedition were less than $25,000. The Pembroke is still doing service in one of the rivers in China. In a memorandum drawn up at a convention held in Yokohama, Oct. 22, 1864, the representatives of the four treaty powers, Sir Rutherford Alcock (England), Leon Roches (France), Robert H. Pruyn (United States), D. D. Von Polsbroek (Holland), demanded $3,000,000 "indemnities and expenses for hostile acts of the Prince of Nagato." Four hundred and twenty thousand dollars were claimed as compensation for injuries to the vessels, American, French and Dutch, first fired on, or $140,000 apiece. "Such a sum, or a much larger one, may be justly claimed," is the official language. Hence Great Britain would receive somewhat less of the partition of the indemnity than any of the other powers. The share of each nation, not including interest, was:

United States	$785,000
France	785,000
Holland	735,000
Great Britain	645,000

All the instalments have been paid over to the respective powers, in part by the bakufu, and the remainder by the Mikado's government, the last being in 1875.

In dividing the money the French principle was to apportion it according to the numerical forces of each power engaged. The American principle was that the general co-operation of the four powers had equal weight, and contributed in equal degree to effect the result.

It is claimed that the Japanese had a perfect right to close the Strait of Shimonoseki, since she had not granted the right to navigate it to any nation by treaty; that the Pembroke had no right to be where she was, as the Shimonoseki route is not the direct one to Nagasaki; that the loss inflicted upon the Japanese fully offset the loss sustained by the French, Dutch and Americans, (no English ship was fired upon or injured before the 5th of September,) and that the Japanese made the most ample apologies and paid $10,000 damages for "five days' loss of time by the Pembroke at $300 per diem" "loss of freight and passengers, it not being able to visit Nagasaki, whither she was bound, estimated at $8,500;" "consideration for deadly peril for officers and crew, $2,000," and the balance for glory. The whole of this sum was fully paid by the Japanese before the 5th of September, and it is difficult to see what further claim the United States could have had for indemnity. But as we have seen the payment of $785,000 was exacted and is now, amounting to $1,250,000, principal and interest, in Washington. The question now being discussed is whether or not all but $150,000 shall be returned to Japan.

ADULTERATED LIQUORS.

If those who look upon the various fluids which are labeled "wine," when they are red, had the forty-million microscopic power of vision modestly disclaimed by Sam Weller, they would see much that would shake their confidence in the boasted purity of the liquor set before them.

Some years ago Dr. Hassel, of London, an eminent chemist, was employed by the medical society of that city to examine critically samples of all articles of food and drink sold in England. Dr. Hassel devoted much time to the execution of this duty, and some of the results he arrived at were very astonishing, and none more so than those which showed the constituents of the wines and liquors sold as "strictly pure." Some of the whiskies really were pure, but not a single sample of wine of any kind, or of any kind of spirits, was found which had not been doctored. Every sample of wine contained a large or small percentage of adulterating ingredients, and in some instances the analysis failed to show that the "wine" had even a trace of grape juice. Many of the wines were made up of different kinds of grape or berry juice, colored and flavored to suit and made of the required strength by the admixture of alcohol. But there were many others in which the constituents were simply water, burnt sugar, coloring and flavoring matter and alcohol. In some instances the dealers from whom Dr. Hassel procured his samples indignantly denied the truth of his report, as far as it related to the articles he had purchased from them, and had other analyses made by other chemists: but the result in every case was the same as that reported by Dr. Hassel. These dealers found out that the wine which they had believed to be pure had been doctored even before it left the hands of the vinter who made it, and the fact was developed that pure wine of any variety is rarely ever to be had out of the country producing it, and not always even there.

The extent to which the adulteration of wine is sometimes carried has recently been shown in a case tried on this coast, an item concerning which we clip from an exchange. It reads as follows:

> Chemical analysis of the contents of a cask of claret, to recover the value of which a wine dealer of San Francisco had sued a customer, showed the wine to contain eight per cent. of alcohol and traces of œnanthic ether, that the coloring matter was myrtleberry juice, and that the acid taste was produced by sulphuric acid.

Perhaps, if the adulterations were harmless, it would not matter much whether the base of the fluid was grape juice apple juice or some kind of berry juice, provided the liquor produced was agreeable to the taste; but, in most instances, the deadliest poisons were found to be in common use and in alarming proportions.

It will be remembered that a ridiculous and absurd letter, full of self laudation, was recently published as the production of the House doorkeeper, Fitzhugh. It was a matter of surprise how such a letter, if genuine, could have got into the newspapers. It now appears that the letter in question was written in a playful strain to a supposed warm personal friend; that the same person getting possession of it and thinking he could use it for his advantage, demanded certain appointments from Fitzhugh, threatening to publish the letter if they were refused. Mr. Fitzhugh was firm enough not to allow such a threat to influence him, and refused to make the desired appointments. Upon this, the letter grossly changed and added to, was given to the press. Whatever opinion may be entertained of the discretion, or want of discretion, of the writer of such, his subsequent manly firmness will entitle him to commendation and praise.

The Smithsonian Institute at Washington, has for one of its objects the popularization of science. How well that object has been attained may be inferred from the sign on a booth kept by a colored man near the gate of the Smithsonian grounds. In large letters appear the words:

ARACHIS HYPOGEA
OR VA. PEANUTS.

EASTERN RAILWAY CONNECTION.

PORTLAND, May 5, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Will you permit a few words in the columns of your paper on the subject of an Eastern railroad connection. I assume as propositions that need no proof:

1st. That Oregon wants an Eastern railroad connection.

2d. That Oregon needs and must have such a connection.

3d. That Oregon is not able alone, to make that connection.

4th. That Oregon is willing and anxious to aid in making this connection.

The Central Pacific has made a proposition which public sentiment has justly rejected. What then shall we do? What is the next step? Shall we remain inactive until some other company offers terms that we think we can accept? It seems to me that there is something for us to do. The great trouble is in making a connection—to get across the Cascade Mountains. Now let the citizens of Oregon raise a fund which shall be used in making thorough surveys of the Cascade range, with a view to finding the most suitable passes for railways. Let there be two, three or more surveys made, and let the mountains be thoroughly prospected with that end in view. With a feasible route, and with the estimates of the cost of a road in hand, we are then prepared to say what we can or cannot do in the way of aiding any company that comes to our relief. Let the coming season be utilized in this way. The State ought to appropriate funds for this purpose, but as the legislature does not meet until fall, and one season would thus be lost, let a subscription be started with the understanding that the legislature is to be petitioned for an appropriation which, if granted, shall be used in refunding to those who subscribe and pay their money for this purpose. The money thus expended is not lost. These surveys must, or at least ought to be, made before any railroad is begun. If we have this much done this coming summer, the legislature will have before it in the fall something on which to base its action. Can you not, Mr. Editor, set the ball in motion, and thus make a new start for Eastern connection? ACTIVITY.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

WHEREAS, SOME MALICIOUS PERSONS HAVE been for some time circulating a report that I did some months since purloin a sum of money from the drawer at the Police headquarters, I wish to say to them that I solemnly and emphatically deny that and every other criminal charge alleged against me, and hereby publicly challenge them to produce their proofs. To my friends I will say that I have in my possession full evidence of my innocence in this matter which I will take pleasure in exhibiting to them at any time; and that I make this public statement only from the fact that an innocent man should not always silently suffer in business and reputation at the hands of envious slanderers. A GOOD WASHING MACHINE.
THE COMPLETE WASHER.

WITH GREAT SATISFACTION WE TESTIFY to the wonderful qualities of the "COMPLETE WASHER" Machine, which is in use by many of the best families in our city, because it makes the wash day one of pleasure, and causes no wear on clothing or tire to operator. It is by excessive and exhaustive labor by the women of our land, who are toiling all day long on an ordinary family washing in the hot suds, wearing away their knuckle bones and very lives every week in the year, and going out from the seething tub to the cold air, which causes our mothers, sisters and loved ones to take cold so easily, causing pains in the back and limbs, rheumatism, pleurisy, chills and fever, etc., sometimes resulting in death. Ladies rescue yourselves from this thraldom, and purchase a "Complete Washer," the Premium Washer of our land, which economizes time and does away with this excessive labor; for you know that for one to handle by hand large articles, such as quilts, etc., that it is exceedingly difficult by the old mode. We advise and entreat everybody, therefore, to have one of these Machines. They are within the reach of every family.

Of the great number who have this Machine in Oregon and on the Pacific slope, not one would part with it for Hundreds and thousands of such testimonials could be gotten.

GRAND ENCAMPMENT.—The Grand Encampment I O O F will meet in second annual communication at Odd Fellows' Temple, in this city on Monday, May 15 1876 at 5 o'clock P M. It is expected that there will be a large attendance. This branch of the order, as we are informed, is in a very flourishing condition in this State. Indeed, this may be said of the order at large.

ALMOST A FIRE.—About 11 o clock yesterday morning the roof of the building occupied by the Steilacoom beer depot was discovered on fire. Frank Molthrop and Adam Zorn observed the embryo blaze and hastened to the roof with water, and soon extinguished it. Quite a space was burned. The cause assigned is the dropping of a spark from a neighboring chimney.

AMUSEMENTS.

The extreme balmy weather was sufficient to keep almost everybody out in the open air. However a large number could not resist the temptation to visit New Market Theater last evening where an entire change in the programme was made. The Worrells, Knight, Richards and Jones did even better than on any previous evening, each act eliciting rounds of applause. Knight's little band of twelve and the infant darkey went through the march and sang "One Hundred Years Ago," which was loudly encored and a repetition the result. In addition to being a very clever artist, Knight is certainly a skillful tactician, as the evolutions performed by the "60th Boys" abundantly prove. Those who witnessed the performance went away with the satisfaction of having enjoyed a pleasant evening's entertainment. This evening the troupe will appear again, and a capital "bill of fare" is promised.

The bark Onward, bid in by Mr S Baxter at the [illegible] mill sale, for $3,000 was sold by him a day or two after for $4,000.

The Boise Statesman says: F B Scott now in jail at that place charged with robbing the Silver City stage, [illegible] the handsomest man in Boise City.

Some boys were throwing stones for fun the other day at Port Madison. One of the boys named Primrose, was accidentally struck and had his skull broken.

The iron bridge across the North Platte at Fort Laramie which was built by the government under military supervision, was thrown open to travel April 24th.

The steamer Eliza Anderson is to be hauled out of the water, strongly refastened, carpentered, renovated &c, preparatory to being put on as an opposition boat between Victoria and Olympia.

The doctors of Laramie are quarreling, and disputing over a child which is sick with something that resembles the small pox. When doctors disagree then look out for the patient to die.

Messrs Carkeek & Doyle have got the contract to build the jail at Seattle. The offer to build of stone was for $9,856 and of brick for $10,196. The commissioners have not determined on the material.

Among the trophies brought back by the Crook expedition and now on exhibition at Cheyenne, is a large pipe which is said to have belonged to Crazy Horse. It is quite a curiosity in these piping times of peace.

The Santa Fe New Mexican notes the arrival there of Olin D Wheeler and J L Hillers of Powell's expedition from Forts Wingate and Defiance, where they have been collecting curiosities of all sorts for the Centennial, and especially idols, pottery and other things of Indian Pueblo manufacture.

The directors of the Western Washington Industrial Association met at Olympia last Saturday. The word "Western" was dropped and the society will be known hereafter as the "Washington Industrial Association." The capital was increased from $6,000 to $20,000. Fences, water supply and grading were provided for, and plans for a pavilion adopted.

A Mexican walked into a pawnbroker's shop at Silver City, New Mexico the other day, took from the counter the hat of the proprietor whose back was turned and when that individual was ready to attend to him, obtained a loan of six bits on the hat which was duly ticketed and stowed away and the trick was not discovered till the hat was needed.

A Brain-Soothing Remedy

The wondrous organ that crowns the edifice of man is not only the seat of reflection and the home of ideality but it is the governing centre of the nervous system. When it is overwrought unduly excited or affected by irregularities of those bodily organs with which it most closely sympathizes all the nerves suffer and the general health is impaired. The reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters exercise such a soothing influence upon the brain is that they remove those digestive and bilious derangements which react injuriously upon it and that in relieving irritation or weakness of the great sympathetic nerve which connects the stomach and the brain they beneficially affect the latter organ, as well as the former. Sound sleep clearness of mind easy digestion and freedom from biliousness are insured by this prime regulative tonic and nervine.

When you wish to present a respectable appearance dress well. All the young and old men in the town consider that the late importations at Jos Kohn's are the best they have seen. Kohn is always "up to snuff" and provides his patrons with the latest and best. Examine the stock.

Tried and found eminently correct, the meals as served at the Occidental Restaurant daily by McCafferty & Whittle. This firm have recently taken charge though they are old timers in the business and have many friends.

He will no doubt give every satisfaction to those needing his services as Assistant Surgeon or otherwise. Thanking the citizens of Portland and elsewhere in the State, Idaho and Washington Territory for their confidence and liberality, I hope our short acquaintance has been of great advantage to all. My address until further notice will be "San Francisco, Cal." In Portland "Chas F Wightman, N E cor Stark and Fourth street, P O box 247."

Lot Livermore declines the nomination of the Independents of Umatilla county for county treasurer.

Traveling by stage is so rough that persons passing through Jacksonville for the North engage hacks to take them to Roseburg.

The Batavia (Illinois) News tells of a heavy stripping of wagons from that place for Salem Oregon. Some of the same wagons came in on the Webfoot April 24th.

Henry Alfry living on Rock creek, Wasco county came to Pendleton with a wagon and four fine horses for a load of flour. On Thursday one of the best horses he had in his team laid down and died, without any positive indications of previous sickness.

The fire department of Corvallis on Tuesday evening presented Mrs H W Vincent of the New England hotel with an elegant silver castor as an acknowledgment of the valuable services rendered by her in getting up the elegant supper at the recent firemen's benefit in that city.

A letter from Sam's Valley, Jackson county, dated April 27th says: "Our farmers are done seeding and the courageous battling against rain and mud has terminated for the present and the farmers claim the victory, as small grain never looked better. Grass is much better this spring than it has been for many years past and stock of all kinds look well."

The Jacksonville Times learns that a boy named Custer was drowned in the Applegate last week. It appears that the lad who is about half witted got into a small boat and descended the stream going over the rapids several miles below where it capsized and drowned the occupant. Neither the body nor the boat had been recovered at last accounts.

Under date of May 2d a correspondent at Milton, Umatilla county writes: "Crops are looking well in this vicinity. Within the last two weeks there have been eight or ten claims taken within one and a half miles of Milton and still there is room for others to get good homes. The grangers had a splendid time here the 1st of May. The Independents will carry this county. We are all getting very independent."

Drunken Indians bothered Miss Sallie Fields of Umatilla county when her father was away from the house, more than she thought was right and one day not long ago, one of the worthless redskins started away from the house with some small article which did not belong to him. Miss F commanded him to drop it but he would not and she fired. Luckily she missed the Indian and he ran for dear life. She has not been troubled since by any drunken vagabond Indians.

On last Sunday says the Albany Democrat while playing in the yard or about the barn Roscoe, a little son of W R Price, aged four years was badly hurt but how it is not known. In some manner he received a clean slashing cut to the bone across the left cheek. Whether he fell and was thus hurt or received a glancing blow from the hoof of one of the horses in the barn cannot be told. Blood was found near one of the stalls, which would indicate that the accident occurred there.

Deputy Supreme Chancellor N T Caton of Walla Walla assisted by Knights Taylor, Kay, Andrews and Cock also of Walla Walla, and J C Dusoway and J H Turner of Pendleton met in Odd Fellows hall in the latter town on the 27th of April and after conferring the several ranks on Wm Switzler, E Welch, S I Morse, D M Taylor, George C Hopkins, A P Craig, C C Townsend, M P Bull, H G Peters and Jas Layman proceeded to institute a Lodge of Knights of Pythias at Pendleton to be known as Damon Lodge No 4 K of P.

On the 24th day of April, says the Pendleton paper, on the Butter creek race track an affray occurred between Cass Rogers and Newton Wright on the one side, and Henry Wheeler on the other side, whereby the latter was severely beaten by the former. Subsequently Wheeler made complaint before Esq Bramstetter of Happy Canyon, charging Rogers with assault and battery. A jury trial was had, and Rogers acquitted. The court, in rendering judgment, assessed the costs to Wheeler, and remanded him to the custody of the constable until they were paid. A day or two since a complaint was filed before Esq Williams by Wheeler, charging Rogers and Wright with assault and battery. A warrant was issued, but as yet the parties have not been arrested.

TURNING OVER THE NEW LEAF

The year begins—I turn a leaf
All over writ with good resolves,
Which to fulfill will be in chief
My aim while earth its round revolves.
How many a leaf I've turned before,
And tried to make the record true!
[illegible] 's d [illegible] ll shore
[illegible] I [illegible] but little knew

An[d] [illegible] resolve how high [illegible] bear
[illegible]
How [illegible] "how poor you were"
How [illegible] gone
You point to [illegible]
[illegible] in the path of careless ease
[illegible] is this
The fare a human [illegible]

What wonder then if men [illegible]
Where good is ever all sinister
While vice is fair and pleasant all
[illegible] the year
Yet still once more I turn the leaf
And mean [illegible]
I struggle with old unbelief
And strive to reach the [illegible]

Why should the road that leads to heaven
Be all one round of sterile sand?
Why not, just here and there, be given
A rose to deck the dreary land?
But why repine? Others have trod
With sore feet and heavier [illegible]
Their painful pathway toward their God
My pilgrimage anew begins

Failure and failure hitherto,
Has Time inscribed upon my leaves,
I've wandered many a harvest through
And never yet have gathered sheaves
Yet once again the leaf I turn
Hope against hope for one success,
One merit mark at least to earn,
One sunbeam in the wilderness.

CENTENNIAL EXHIBITS

The following from the N. Y. Tribune will give a faint idea of some of the Centennial exhibits to those who will not be there to see for themselves:

The Chinese, the latest comers, have completed a gorgeous little pavilion, with walls of gilded wood work carved to represent vines and leaves and showing through the open spaces a background of red silk. There are numerous large panels of white, on which are painted quaint figure pieces representing scenes in Chinese life. The Japanese have most of their show cases in place but have not begun to unpack their wares. In the Egyptian court there is already a gleam of splendidly embroidered table spreads scarlet [illegible] cloths heavy with gold and silver thread, and bridles and stirrups glittering with bullion and gems, seen through the rents in the wrappings that but half conceal the carved ebony cases and their contents.

In the Austrian department very unique exhibit of [illegible] is in place. It consists of a large white tablet some 20 feet by 12 made of plates of the substance, with a border of black and yellow beeswax tiles of diamond shape. The whole is framed in black wood and the face of the tablet bears an inscription in raised letters giving the name and address of the exhibitors. The German name of the substance is spar butter (economical butter). The glass makers of Bohemia, the Prague glovers, and the Vienna manufacturers of leather, amber, meerschaum, and ivory goods will be well represented. Scotch jewelers show what [illegible] can be wrought with pebbles. Some beautiful silks and cloth of gold are displayed in the Indian section. Canada has unpacked nothing as yet. New South Wales has just completed a pavilion of coal. Jamaica and the Cape of Good Hope are each inclosing small courts. Queensland has erected a column showing the total bulk of gold taken from her [illegible] and has also put up a pyramid of ingots of tin. The colored photographs of landscapes, towns, farm-dwellings and mining life in this colony are admirable. Among the new objects of interest in the Swedish section is a huge [illegible] covered with maps of the [illegible] of that country. Among the [illegible] articles unpacked are some curiously [illegible] and an ancient bedstead in richly sculptured oak. Italy appears to have tried to make amends for her tardiness in [illegible] invitation to take part in the Exhibition. All her [illegible] art industries, such as [illegible], coral work, cameos, inlaid wood work, gold and silver filagree, and Venetian [illegible] will be represented, and the art department [illegible] 300 marble statues—a larger number than was sent to any previous world's fair.

Among the curiosities in the Italian exhibit is a mosaic called the Ruins of Pæstum, which contains in a space five feet eight inches long, by two feet two inches wide, 750,000 separate [illegible]. Brazil's [illegible] structure of Moorish architecture promises to be the most striking object in the building. The clustered columns are still of their primitive wood-color, but part of the entablature has received a decoration of the monogram P. H. in gold, thickly strewn upon a crimson ground. In the Netherlands section there is a mosque of dazzling brilliancy of gold and color and this is to contain the products of the Dutch East Indian colonies.

The American section presents an astonishing variety of costly show cases and architectural structures. Some are beautiful and appropriate, others tasteless and pretentious, and many will eclipse by their glitter the articles they contain. One very notable line of exhibits already in place is the mantels of marbles and marbleized slate. In this industry we shall leave all other countries out of sight.

It is too early to speak of the general agricultural exhibit in detail, but it can be predicted with certainty that it will be much more extensive in the line of machinery than was that of the Vienna Exhibition, and that it will not fall behind in farm products and food preparations. The international feature will be more noticeable here than anywhere else except in the [illegible] building, 21 foreign countries having applied for space. These are Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Belgium, the Netherlands, Spain, Italy, China, Japan, Venezuela, Chili, Brazil, Mexico, Canada, Denmark, Argentine Republic and Portugal. There will, too, be more special State exhibits than in any other department of the fair, collective displays of farm products having been contributed by the State agricultural boards of Missouri, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Connecticut, [illegible], Oregon, New Hampshire, Washington Territory, New Jersey, West Virginia, Delaware, Ohio, Kentucky, Florida and Iowa.

The exhibits for the U. S. government building are now fast coming in. From the war department there are all sorts of weapons from old wall pieces to modern mitrailleuses, and complete sets of musket-making and cartridge-making machinery; from the navy department three marine engines, a ship's galley, a boat used by Dr Kane and one that belonged to Sir John Franklin; the postoffice department is represented by a model post and money order office with a corps of letter carriers for service on the grounds; the Smithsonian is filling nearly half the building with its ethnological and mineralogical collections; and the patent office has its [illegible] ready for models. A small space, yet unoccupied, is reserved for the treasury. Included in the mineral display is a column of coal 40 feet high and four feet square taken from the mammoth vein near Pottsville, Penn, by the Reading Coal Co. A huge shaft of bituminous coal from the Cumberland arrived yesterday.

The statue of the late Senator Baker of Oregon, has been placed in Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington. It is thus described: It is life size, and stands on a handsome dark pedestal and is made of pure white Italian marble. The friends and relatives of the deceased statesman pronounce the likeness good, and the entire work worthy of the reputation of the artist. He is represented standing, with his left foot slightly advanced, in the act of delivering an oration. His right arm is elevated in front of and across his breast, the index finger pointing downward. His right arm rests against his breast and in his hand he carries a small roll. The head is well thrown back, and the expression of the face is earnest and animated. A military cloak or mantle is thrown across his left shoulder and sweeps in graceful folds around his form, falling at his feet on the left on a military hat surmounted with an ostrich plume beside which lies a sword. The [illegible] is effective: the erect figure, the manly face, the bald head fringed with curly locks and the short side whiskers all remind one of the Senator Baker of old when in the attitude of delivering one of his stirring orations. The statue is not the gift of Oregon, but was provided for by a Congressional appropriation several years ago.

A lady had her dress trimmed with bugles before going to a ball. Her little daughter wanted to know if the bugles would blow when she danced. "Oh no," said the mother, "papa will do that when he sees the bill."

Business is very [illegible] to day considering that [illegible] Monday [illegible] usually [illegible] of the week. Though there is still a full supply of funds in the market [illegible] are [illegible] in [illegible] closely by those who are in possession of the means to grant them and there is but little [illegible] to relax the close conservative policy so long a feature of the market. There is a hopeful feeling prevalent in regard to [illegible] of the season which is [illegible] mented by the beginning of good weather and the prospects of its continuance. Up to a certain point the trade of the country renders so much business a necessity and [illegible] argued that owing to the backwardness of the season so far the necessities of the country have not been fully supplied and that enough to supply the deficiency must be transacted during the remainder of the spring. Aside from the regular volume of business which must come every year the financial condition of the people, the amount of their surplus products and the state of the markets of demand, go to make business more or less lively one year than another. The spirit of economy which has ruled to a great extent among the masses during the past two years it is also claimed will be somewhat relaxed during the Centennial year. It is thought that more money will be spent for what are known as the luxuries of life than has been in the past two years.

There has been no special new features in local monetary circles to day. There is a gradual tendency to greater favor of silver coin, and but few of those who accepted it in ordinary sums at par before the late depreciation now discount it arbitrarily. Legal tenders are quoted half a cent higher than before for several months.

Mail advices from the East give accounts of the feeling which prevailed when pursuant to order of the Treasury Department, the redemption of fractional currency began. A great many people who had used nothing but paper money for so long regarded the matter as a novelty and there was quite a demand for small amounts "just to handle" and for "pocket pieces." The aggregate, however required for the purposes of carrying out the order so far has been rather below than above the estimates indicating if anything that the people generally are not so tired of paper currency as was presumed.

We learn that a very great proportion of the money paid out at the several fisheries down the Columbia has been in trade dollars and that the laborers and others who are paid in small sums are carrying a great deal of this coin in the aggregate.

The Produce Market

Locally, under advices from abroad opened very dull to day, and buyers proceeded with rather more than usual caution. The wheat quotations are materially reduced in the telegrams from San Francisco, though there is little or nothing to indicate much lower prices in Liverpool. The market here was never less active and quotations are entirely nominal. Buyers in many cases are out of the market and sellers are very scarce, the lots held on speculation not being offered and farmers being too busy since good weather began to attend the market in numbers or give it much attention.

The demand for minor products is quite as active as usual, and the light receipts have generally been placed at the rates obtained last week. Provisions are firm as a rule and choice lots are taken quite freely for shipment. Dairy products are in fair supply and prices are weaker; eggs will not be likely to command more than 15c to morrow or during the week. There is nothing new to report in the market for hides and wool which continue in a very depressed and unsatisfactory condition both here and abroad.
